The “Battle of the Birds” takes flight at Lytton River Festival

The “Battle of the Birds” took flight in September at the Lytton River Festival. This groundbreaking culinary competition was co-hosted by Kevin Loring and his Savage Society theatre troupe and the Alexandra Bridge Project. It’s the second year since the first “Battle of the Birds” took place in 2015. The event brings together Aboriginal and non-Aboriginal chefs to compete in a fun and engaging culinary showdown.

The festival will feature a variety of events throughout the month of September, including a Gold Rush Trail marketing initiative, a Fraser raft trip, and a canoe race. The festival is open to the public and is a great opportunity to experience the rich history and culture of the area.

For more information on the New Pathways To Gold Society, please contact Don Hauka, Communications and Creative Director, at 604.524.1884 or dhauka@shaw.ca.